

Website Terms and Conditions

Accessing the website

Any information provided on the website (available at www.diritto.co.za) is subject to the terms set out or referenced herein (collectively the “Ts&Cs”). The Ts&Cs may be amended from time to time and will be available on the website. By accessing the website you agree to the Ts&Cs (as amended, if applicable). We give no warranties, representations, statements or guarantees (whether express, implied or otherwise) about the website or the information provided on the website. You warrant that you are legally entitled to access the website, that you will comply with all applicable laws when using the website and you have legal capacity to be bound by the Ts&Cs. You further acknowledge that we may use the information, data and other content which you provide via the website, subject to the privacy restrictions set out in our privacy policy.

Limitation of liability

Subject to applicable laws, we are not liable for any loss, liability, damage or expense of any nature which may be caused by or attributable, directly or indirectly, to the website, including use of or reliance on any information offered on or via the website.

Intellectual Property

We own or are licensed to use all intellectual property rights in and to all materials (including text and data) made available on the website. The website and the materials may not be reproduced, duplicated or copied or otherwise exploited for any purpose without our express prior written consent.

External Links to Third Party Websites

Our website may contain external links for your convenience. We make no representation and cannot accept responsibility for its content, security or quality. The use of any external links is therefore at your own risk.

Applicable Laws

All matters arising from or in connection with the Ts&Cs including its interpretation, validity, existence or termination for any reason shall be determined in accordance with the laws of the Republic of South Africa.